IDEAS.

The light of God cures the lust of gold.

Berea College Fall Term opens September 10.

The juice of one good-sized lemon will destroy the typhoid bacillus in a gallon of water.

In this world it is not what we take up, but what we give up, makes us rich.—Berean.

It would be wise to boil the water you use for drinking, especially well water; typhoid is around.

Typhoid is now generally held to be due to a specific germ, the typhoid bacillus, which is taken into the system, almost always if not invariably, by swallowing.—STANDARD DICTIONARY.

TAKE NOTICE.

Dr Burgess will preach at the Tabernacle next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock on "The Greatest Event in the History of the World"; and at night will give a stereopticon lecture on "The Way of Life."

FROM THE WIDE WORLD.

Turkey has made arrangements to have three battleships built in this country, to be delivered at an early day.

Oil has been discovered in large quantities in the island of Trinidad, and is being worked under Canadian auspices.

Prince Chen, brother of the reigning Emperor of China, is expected at an early day to make an extensive tour through the United States. He is now in England.

Sir Michael Hicks Beach, at a fine well dinner at the Mansion House, London, said that the Chinese and South African wars had cost Great Britain $1,110,000,000.

IN OUR OWN COUNTRY.

There are $550,000,000 of gold in the U. S. Treasury.

The tomato crop of Florida this year is 1,000,000 crates.

More than 69,000 boys and girls of New York have registered for admission to the vocational schools for the terms beginning in July.

The farmers, according to the Census Bureau, own but 20 per cent of the country's wealth but they form approximately one-half of the population.

Frank Ferguson, of Calmar, Ia., found in a Mississippi river clam a large pearl, and sold it to J. W. Burd, of Black Rock, Ark., for $1,750.

The corn crop of the country for this year has been estimated by the department of agriculture at 2,600,000,000 bushels and the wheat crop at 725,000,000 bushels.

Late on the night of July 24 the worst wreck in the history of the Pennsylvania Railroad occurred at Trelokin Station, near Zanesville, O., caused by a runaway car of coal crashing into passenger train No 2, which was running at full speed. The engineer and fireman of the passenger train were killed, also two postal clerks, fifteen other persons were injured, and the train of seven cars was a total wreck.

COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY.

Three prisoners broke jail at Mt. Vernon last Thursday evening. Two were caught, one escaping.

According to the Geological Survey report the output of coal in Kentucky for 1901 was 5,469,986 short tons; spot value, $5,212,576.

The per capita for the operation of the public schools of the State for this year is $2.32, or 18 cents less than the per capita for 1901.

There is considerable excitement in Bell county over the reported discovery of a silver mine on land owned by Wilkerson Slusher on Straight Creek.

Alvin Brown, of Clay county, serving a four years' sentence at Frankfort, was pardoned Friday by Gov. Beckham. Brown is dying of consumption.

Messrs. Golden and Flora, marble cutters at Richmond, have purchased the shop and good will of the Madison Monumental Works, of Richmond, of J. T. Hamilton. Golden & Flora attend personally to the work, and are vouches for by any bank or any business house in Richmond.

OF PARAMOUNT IMPORTANCE.

Parents, are your boys and girls in school? If not, why not?

The public schools in the rural districts of the State are nearly all in session. The public schools are maintained for the benefit of our boys and girls directly, and indirectly for the development and betterment of the country at large through a better equipped and more thoroughly trained citizenship.

It is of supreme importance that the rising generation receive an education, and there is no place where the foundation for a good education can be laid for the mass of our young people so well as in the public school. It is not alone that the teaching is more systematic, but that in the public school the boy and girl come into contact with the classes of persons whom in after life they will have to do with, and who will most surely have a positive influence on their life and future destiny whether they will or not.

The education received in the public school is not alone from books, that is comparatively narrow and exclusive, but from the association with one's fellows, and we learn to recognize the needs and rights of others, and realize that we are part of the Brotherhood.

Parents, if you, through negligence and indifference, do not see that your children get their share of this needed education, you will be as guilty before God as though you willfully withheld from them necessary food, for "Man shall not live by bread alone."

The day is right upon us when a young or young woman can no more take his or her true place in the economy of the world without an education than a ship could safely and successfully navigate its way across the ocean lacking a master mariner, compass and chart.

If the boys and girls do not go to school, the fault lies primarily with the parents, they having the authority to enforce attendance. Parents, for the welfare of your children here and hereafter send them to the public school, and see that they go.

STATE GUARD ENCAMPMENT.

Mr. J. H. Milliken, district passenger agent of the L. & N. railroad has been to Mammoth Cave, where he has completed arrangements for the encampment of the Kentucky State Guards next month. Mr. Milliken thinks from present indications the encampment will be the best attended and most successful in the history of the Kentucky militia.

Great attention has been paid to the social features of the coming encampment, and not only that, but, at the request of the State military authorities, the State executive committee of the Y. M. C. A. will have an association tent at the encampment, and the tent will be equipped with magazines and other periodicals, newspapers, writing material, games, etc., for the enjoyment and benefit of the men during their leisure hours.

Last year the average daily attendance at this tent was 538; 2,531 letters were written and mailed, and the influence on the men was of the best. Mr. W. W. Brockman, one of the State secretaries of the Association will be in charge of the tent.

The railroads have made a rate for visitors from July 30 to Aug. 16 from every point in Kentucky, at about one cent a mile. The L. & N. will run a special train from Louisville, leaving at noon, July 30. Everybody will be welcome.

LESSON V, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 3.

Text of the Lesson, Ex. xl. 1-28.
Memory Verses, 1-3—Golden Text,
Ps. c. 4—Commentary Prepared by
Rev. D. M. Stearns.

(Copyright, 1902, by American Press Association.)

1. 2, 17-19. And the Lord spoke unto Moses, saying: On the first day of the first month shalt thou set up the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation.

Thus Moses was commanded, and thus he did to every particular just as he was commanded. See verse 16 and compare the sevenfold obedience in verses 10, 21, 23, 25, 27, 29, 32. This whole chapter gives a twofold statement of the completion and erection of the tabernacle—verses 1-13 the Lord's command and 17-33 Moses' obedience—after which the Lord approves and accepts the work. About three months after they left Egypt at Mount Sinai the Lord said to Moses, "Let them make Me a sanctuary, that I may dwell among them," and the full instructions concerning it and the priesthood are found in chapters xxv to xxx, while the account of the work as it was done is found in chapters xxxv to xxxix, and in the lesson today we have the erection and dedication on the first day of the first month of the second year. As with this building, so with the temple of Solomon—God Himself, and God alone, was the architect (1 Chron. xxviii, 19). A very peculiar thing about the material for the tabernacle was the willingness of the people and the abundance of the gifts, so that Moses had to restrain the people from bringing (chapter xxxvi, 6, 7).

3, 29, 31. And thou shalt put thereon the ark of the testimony and cover the ark with the vail.

This was the only vessel in the holy of holies and spoke of Christ, in whose heart was the law and who is the end of the law for righteousness to every believer. The wood and gold suggest His humanity and divinity. He is indeed our mercy seat (Rom. iii, 25, R. V., where alone God can meet the sinner, and the vail speaks of His body Heb. x, 20), which concealed the glory while He was here on earth. The cherubim beaten out of the same piece of the gold of the mercy seat, and also figures of the same worked in the vail tell of His body, the church, and our oneness with Him.

4, 22-25. And thou shalt bring in the tabernacle and set in order the things that are to be set in order upon it, and thou shalt bring in the candlesticks and light the lamps thereof.

In these two vessels in the outer or first room, the holy place, we see Him who said, "I am the Bread of Life," "I am the Light of the World" (John vi, 35; viii, 12). We see His death and resurrection in the sowing and reaping of the grain, and His sufferings are also set forth in the grinding of the grain (John xii, 24; Isa. xxvii, 28). His sufferings are also seen in the pressing or bruising of the olives to obtain oil for the lamps.

5, 26-28. And thou shalt set the altar of gold for the incense before the ark of the testimony and put the hanging of the door to the tabernacle.

This was the third and only other article of furniture in the holy place, and on it the priest was to burn incense morning and evening (Ex. xxx, 7, 8). It suggests the merits and excellencies of the Lord Jesus in His present great work of intercession for His people, for apart from Him no sacrifice can be accepted.

6, 29. And thou shalt set the altar of burnt offering before the door of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation.

This brazen altar or altar of burnt offering represents the work of Christ on Calvary suffering in our stead for our sins. It was just within the court by the entrance, and there was blood upon it and at the foot of it. It was impossible to enter the tabernacle except by this altar, so that any who would not accept the way of the blood could not possibly enter.

5, 30-32. And thou shalt set the court round about and hang up the hanging at the court gate.

While the brazen altar proclaims justification and also phase of sanctification which refers to our standing in Christ before God (Rom. v, 9; Heb. x, 10, 14), the latter points to the continued cleansing in daily life by the word of God (John xvii, 17; xlii, 10; Ps. cxix, 96).

8, 23. And thou shalt set up the court round about and hang up the hanging at the court gate.

This three fence hung upon wooden pillars and attached to them by silver hooks, each pillar standing in a socket of brass and kept upright by cords attached to brass pins driven in the earth, is all suggestive of redemption by blood, the righteousness provided for us and the way we are kept by the power of God. A pillar could not be a part of the tabernacle while it stood as a tree in the forest, but it had to be cut down and put upon a new foundation. This suggests the new birth. We are plainly told in Rev. xli, 8, that the tree then is the righteousness of salvation.

36-38. Both the high priest and his sons and the tabernacle and all its vessels had to be anointed, for all were set apart to be holy unto the Lord and to minister unto Him. His special position, set apart for Himself, meet for His use (Tit. ii, 14; R. V.; Ps. Iv, 3; II Tim. ii, 21).

34, 35. The glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle.

So He will fill us if we are willing and obedient and wholly set apart for Himself, our bodies a living sacrifice, that He may be glorified in us, our determination that of Paul in Phil. i, 20; III, 10, etc.

36-38. The pillar of cloud was to them a guide, a light, a shield, an oracle, an avenger, a covering, for God Himself was in it. It was the symbol of His presence in the sight of all the people.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems Cleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations.

Procrastination is the thief of souls.—Rev. N. H. Lee, Methodist, Denver.

A Reasonable Service.

Religion is a reasonable service.—Rev. G. R. Starr, Baptist, Brooklyn.

Results of Intoxication.

More than one-half of crime is due to Intoxication.—Rev. J. H. Zhu, Lutheran, Akron, O.

God's Discipline Merciful.

God's severest discipline is always merciful.—Rev. Dr. Carson, Presbyterian, Brooklyn.

Thunderbolts of Omnipotence.

You cannot expect to weigh the thunderbolts of omnipotence in an apothecary's balance.—The Late Rev. T. D. Witt, Talmage.

Fundamental Law of Being.

Clear consciousness is not only a great truth of theology, but it is a fundamental law of being.—Rev. A. H. Kinsolving, Episcopal, Brooklyn.

The Seed of Action.

What we need is action. The glory of the Lord depends upon those who will take hold and move forward.—Rev. A. C. Ward, Baptist, Atlanta.

Trusting Fellow Men.

No man can find the true God anywhere among the principles that actuate men who distress their fellows.—Rev. W. D. Downey, Methodist, Philadelphia.

Not Merely Blind Assent.

To believe is not a blind assent of the mind to an unintelligible truth, but a most rational and manly intellectual function.—Rev. Father Michael, Catholic, Pittsburgh.

The Mission of Sorrow.

Unless one has known sorrow one can never know joy, and unless one has seen the shadow one will never know the light.—Rev. Dr. Eaton, Baptist, Cleveland, O.

Secret of Greatness.

To give oneself to a cause, to be ready to sacrifice to that cause self and everything connected with self, is the secret of greatness.—Rev. Dr. Al-sop, Episcopalian, Brooklyn.

The Function of Religion.

The function of religion is to enrich and deepen life, to make it more joyful and more beautiful, more full of satisfaction and inspiration.—Rev. F. H. Hinckley, Unitarian, Philadelphia.

Founded in Reason.

Every truth at the foundation of Christian faith is reasonable. Not all can be discovered by reason, but when once discovered they are compatible.—Rev. S. C. Leavell, Methodist, Chicago.

A Dishonor to the Church.

Some in the church, by their unholiness and inconsistent lives, are a dishonor to the church and unfit for use. God cannot use them. The Christian is one who is made clean and set apart for the use of the Master.—Rev. Dr. Hol-derby, Presbyterian, Atlanta, Ga.

Aim of Christian Efforts.

No man can win a worthy prize without a tremendous effort. The prize is the reward of victory. Moral likeness to Christ ought to be the aim of all Christian efforts. To dream of the glory and felicity of heaven is our privilege.—Rev. G. B. Vosburgh, Baptist, Denver.

Spiritualizing the Mind.

When the mind is spiritualized, the kingdom of God will stand revealed, and we shall all become partakers of the divine nature, discovering that in the kingdom of God all are gods. By the incarnation of the Christ elements and purposes man made perfect.—Rev. F. E. Mason, Spiritualist, Brook-lyn.

Operation of Divine Grace.

The operation of divine grace is exceptional. There are penalties affixed to the violation of all laws. This is true of the laws of nature, of health and of God. But by the mystery of the cross even the condemned is forgiven and the guilty goes free.—Rev. Dr. Wilson, Methodist, Danbury, Conn.

The Mission of Suffering.

Suffering comes to unveil character, to disclose the real motives and purpose of one's inner self. It brings about a demonstration of the powers of God under conditions most adverse and distressing as seen in the indestructible integrity of those who trust him.—Rev. Dr. Landrum, Baptist, At-lanta, Ga.

The Wider Goal.

He alone lives wisely, with ever widening hope and courage and strength, who sees beyond the moment to the wider goal toward which he moves and in the light of which every step he takes wins a wider and nobler mean-ing. That nation alone is great whose policy is born of wide and noble dreams.—Rev. W. H. Puford, Episcopalian, Chicago.

Breaking a Friendly Stone.

An old custom was for friends to write their names on stones and break them, each taking a part that would match the other and always vouch the identity of him who presented it. Who now offers to break a friendly stone with us? It is the Christ himself.

That will be the happiest day in heaven when we can match the white stone Jesus gives us and be called his per-sonal friend.—Rev. Dr. Alonso Monk, Methodist, Atlanta.

Clearing Away Misconception.

Our intellectual tread will be the firmer for clearing away one misconcep-tion. The reason craves for cer-tainty and all convincing proofs of im-mortality. It is not enough that we guess and hope. We want to prove immortality from the viewpoint of science. It seems not unreasonable that if God makes his earthly child to live in this physical realm he may de-sire to have him continue to live in another life. Many things strengthen the hope. God dwells in eternity, not in that brief moment of time named se-ven-ty years.—Rev. Dr. Hills, Congre-gationalist, Brooklyn.

The Glory of the Lord Filled the Tabernacle.

So He will fill us if we are willing and obedient and wholly set apart for Himself, our bodies a living sacrifice, that He may be glorified in us, our determination that of Paul in Phil. i, 20; III, 10, etc.

36-38. The pillar of cloud was to them a guide, a light, a shield, an oracle, an avenger, a covering, for God Himself was in it. It was the symbol of His presence in the sight of all the people.

GERMAN DRINK PROBLEM.

Starving Figures Lead to Action by the Prussian Diet.

A resolution has been proposed and adopted without opposition in the Prussian diet requesting the ministry to prepare a bill to impose more rigid restrictions on the liquor traffic, says the Philadelphia Record. Count Douglas asserted that the Germans spend $3,000,000,000 marks ($75,000,000) a year in drink, twice the amount of the con-bined army and navy budgets. One-third of the inmates of insane asylums in Germany are victims of intemperance, 80 per cent of the idiots are offspring of intemperate parents, and the number of persons convicted of crimes has increased from 236,029 in 1882 to 478,139 in 1893.

The liquor bill of the United States runs up to something like $1,000,000,000 a year. Adding 50 per cent to this to arrive at the cost of drinks as sold over the bar it will be seen that the nation spends twice as much as the German for this item, says a writer in the New York News.

We are nearly twice as numerous as people as are the Germans, however, and the price of drinks is much higher in this country; moreover, the average earnings of Americans are greater. The figures quoted by Count Douglas, therefore, may well give German statesmen food for thought. It may be inferred from Count Douglas' remarks that in Germany, as lately in France, there has been observed a tendency toward an enlarged consumption of ardent spirits. The remedy adopted by the French government was a remission of internal taxes on wines and a heavy increase of taxes on distilled liquors, and the effect has been as expected. Brandy has been superseded as a drink to a large extent by wine, which of all alcoholic beverages is the least noxious. A similar treatment of the problem by the German government is not possible. Wine grows only in a comparatively few districts of the German empire, and any encouragement of the consumption of beer to offset "schweppes" would probably not be deemed desirable.

Just how the Prussian government will meet the problem remains to be seen. The question is of worldwide interest, and every experiment in the regulation and restriction of drinking adds something to the sum of human knowledge and will be useful to lessened who may have to deal with the same subject.

TEMPERANCE IN CANADA.

Strong Restrictions Placed on the Liquor Traffic.

Whatever may be the result of the vote it is quite clear that the cause of temperance in Britain and, indeed, in the whole Dominion will not deviate from its onward march, declared a writer in the Review of Reviews. Side by side with the long continued prohibition agitation have been successful efforts in bringing about a greater stringency in the license laws. Strong restrictions have been made in the sale of liquor as it applies to certain persons, hours and legal holidays.

The reduction of licenses during the past quarter of a century has also been most marked. In Ontario during this period tavern licenses have been reduced from 4,703 to 2,621, shop licenses from 1,307 to 308, wholesale licenses from 52 to 21 and vessel licenses from 33 to none. This decrease represents one license to 700 people as against one license to 278 people twenty-five years ago. Of the 750 organized municipalities 141 have no tavern license, 425 have not more than two, while 122 are without a shop license.

These facts will encourage prohibitionists to greater activity and confirm many of those in their opinions who believe that the present license laws best serve the cause of temperance. It may therefore be concluded that if prohibition be enacted temperance will still hold on its way or if unsuccessful there will be for the law a general observance.

Valuable Educational Scheme.

A widenawake superintendent of self-tutored temperance instruction at Grand Junction, Colo., has written to every teacher in her county offering prizes of $8 and $10 for the best essay on "The Effect of Alcohol on the Heart."

How They Signed the Pledge.

"Now that we've signed the pledge," said Dimple to Dot, "Not to use alcohol and tobacco, why not ask our dolls that live at Dollikinville to sign the pledge too? I am sure that they will."

"They have not touched tobacco nor tast-ed strong drink," true, answered Dot; "yet I certain-ly think that signing the pledge is the only safe way."

For one never can tell what may happen some day."

So they sat in a row, just as straight as could be—

Isabella, Samantha and pretty Marie,

Black Ernest, young Caesar Augustus,

the pig,

And old Uncle Jedidah, with glasses and wig.

Then the maidens explained to each doll with much care

That 'twas harmful to drink or to smoke or to swear,

And they told how important it was that folks should

Take the pledge and then keep it if they would be good.

When the pledges were brought, every doll wrote its name.

While the girls held their hands (which, of course, was the name);

For the dolls could not without help write a word;

But most willingly signed; no objection was heard.

Then said Dimple, "I hope that this prom-ise you make

You will ne'er be so foolish, so false, as to break."

And they've all kept their word and I am always with

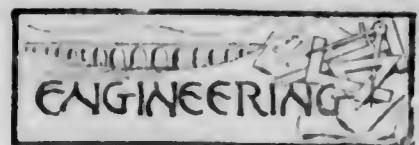

And a temperance town is this Dollikin-ville.

THE HOME.

KITCHEN HELPS.

There is nothing better for cleaning steel knives than kerosene moistened with fine ashes, and when putting away steel knives clean carefully, rub with sweet oil and wrap in paper, a fold between the blades. Plated ware should be wrapped in blue tissue paper, then in unbaked cotton flannel. Putty is good for mending tin or granite ware. Work the putty until smooth, then use a knife for filling the hole. To save towels and washing make towels of pieces of old soft cloth and hang up close in the towels. These can be used when the hands must be frequently washed and they save the towels wonderfully. The teapot will not become stained and coated if it is emptied immediately after using, washed, scalded and thoroughly dried. Much time and labor is saved by filling saucepans with hot soda water till there is time to wash them, and soda is excellent for cleaning tinware. If the stove is rubbed with newspaper every day it will not need to be polished so often, and a very greasy stove should be wiped off with a cloth dipped in kerosene. In polishing the stove the blacking

Engineering News describes a range finder, the invention of a Frenchman, primarily intended for military use, but which can also be utilized in engineering reconnaissance work.

In construction the apparatus consists of two parallel telescopes, like an ordinary fieldglass, fitted with long range lenses and connected together by two bars, which are arranged to slide one within the other, so as to adjust the parallel lines of sight to the individual width between the eyes of the observer. The focusing is done in the ordinary manner, and the apparatus will serve all the purposes of a first rate fieldglass.

At the eye end of the telescopes, however, are two small pivoted levers, each carrying at its end a double refracting quartz prism. These prisms can be thrown into the lines of sight, and then have the effect of producing two images in the field of vision, superimposed or standing vertically one above the other. The distance is estimated by observing how much one image covers the other, and a scale is arranged by sighting upon a man or houseman stationed at known distances from the observer. Diagrams of a foot soldier and a cavalryman, with scales attached, are printed on the barrels of the telescopes for easy reference and are protected by the sunglasses at the object ends of the glasses.

To use the instrument it is first adjusted to the proper width between the eyes and then focused upon the object. This done, the two prisms are turned into the line of sight, and the two images then appear. If the head of the lower man, for example, touches about the middle of the upper image, an inspection of the man diagram shows that the object is 500 meters, or about 2,300 feet, distant. If the image of one man seems to stand directly upon the head of the other, the distance is 1,000 meters, or 4,300 feet.

Variable Stars in Star Clusters.

Photographs of star clusters made at the Peabody station of the Harvard college observatory at Arcetri have shown that in certain clusters a large percentage of the stars are periodically variable in light, out of 13,000 stars examined more than 500 are variable. In one cluster (M. 3) there are 132 variables and in others 125, 85 and 51 variables respectively. In other clusters there are few or no variables. In the cluster M13 in Cetus 98 out of 103 variables have periods of less than 24 hours. The longest period yet determined is 475 days, and the shortest is 6 hours and 11 minutes.

Turbo Boiler Feed For Motors.

A novel boiler feed is the special feature of the Chauschee steam motor car. The boiler is of the flush type, consisting of numerous coils of steel tubing, but the feed water, instead of being pumped directly through the coils, is forced under pressure of air at 200 to 400 pounds per square inch from a vessel at the driver's side. No pressure remains in the boiler when the car is stopped, but the pressure in the water chamber serves to start the car without pumping in water by hand, as in other flush boilers.

Bacteria in a Swimming Bath.

An curious observation has been made by a German bacteriologist in a study of the micro organisms of a constantly used swimming bath. The number of bacteria was found to increase regularly during the first day after the bath was newly filled with water and then to decrease constantly. There was evidence that the decrease could not be due to the action of light nor to sedimentation nor to lack of food. The conclusion reached was that it resulted from struggle of bacteria with each other, many being destroyed.

Novel Street Flushing Device.

The asphalt streets in Geneva, N. Y., are kept clean by the use of a novel flushing apparatus of local design. It consists of a long perforated pipe connected with the nearest fire plug by a line of hose supported at intervals on wooden wheels. When the water is turned on at the plug or hydrant, it is discharged through the perforations of the pipe, which is dragged diagonally from the crown of the street to the gutter by a pair of horses.

The Tub of Water Cure.

The "tub of water cure" is the latest thing in medical science. It originated in Vienna, where they are very active in the pursuit of methods to make sick people well. Wounds, burns, all diseases involving considerable loss of integument, benefit greatly by the tub three times a day, thus offering frequent refreshment to the suffering body. In the case of severe burns especially the tub treatment is said to be a godsend.

Black Rock

By RALPH CONNOR

He went through the papers, carefully laying them down without a word while she waited anxiously, almost impatiently, for him to speak.

"Well," she asked, using his own words to her, "should I go?"

"I do not know," he replied. "That is for you to decide. You know all the circumstances."

"The letters tell all."

Her tone carried a feeling of disappointment. He did not appear to care.

"The estates are large?" he asked.

"Yes, large enough—twelve thousand a year."

"And has your mother-in-law any one with her?"

"She has friends, but, as she says, none near of kin. Her nephew looks after the works—iron works, you know, the has shares in them."

"She is evidently very lonely," he answered gravely.

"What shall I do?" she asked, and I knew she was waiting to hear him urge her to stay, but he did not say or at least gave no heed.

"I cannot say," he repeated quietly. "There are many things to consider. The estates—"

"The estates seem to trouble you," she replied almost fretfully.

He looked up in surprise. I wondered at his shyness.

"Yes, the estates," he went on, "and tenants, I suppose; your mother-in-law, your little Marjorie's future, your own future."

"The estates are in capable hands, I should suppose," she urged, "and my future depends upon what I choose my work to be."

"But one cannot shift one's responsibilities," he replied gravely. "These estates, these tenants, have come to you, and with them come duties."

"Do we not love each other?" was his impatient answer.

"Ah, yes, my love," she said, "but love is not all."

"No!" cried Craig. "But love is the best."

"Yes," she said sadly; "love is the best, and it is for love's sake we will do the best."

"There is no better work than here. Surely this is best." And he pictured his plans before her.

She listened eagerly.

"Oh, if it should be right," she cried, "I will do what you say! You are good, you are wise. You shall tell me."

She could not have recalled him better. He stood silent some moments, then burst out passionately:

"Why, then, has love come to us? We did not seek it. Surely love is of God," he said kindly.

I had thought that perhaps there was work for me here," she suggested timidly.

"Great work," he hastened to say.

"You have done great work, but you will do that wherever you go. The only question is where your work lies."

"You think I should go," she said suddenly and a little bitterly.

"I cannot bid you stay," he answered steadily.

"How can I go?" she cried, appealing to him. "Must I go?"

How he could resist that appeal I could not understand. His face was cold and hard and his voice was almost harsh as he replied:

"If it is right, you will go, you must go."

Then she burst forth:

"I cannot go. I shall stay here. My work is here. My heart is here. How can I go? You thought it worth your while to stay here and work. Why should not I?"

The momentary gleam in his eyes died out, and again he said coldly:

"This work was clearly mine. I am needed here."

"Yes, yes," she cried, her voice full of pain. "You are needed, but there is no need of me."

"Stop! Stop!" he said sharply. "You must not say so."

"I am so glad and thankful!"

"Yes; it was rather considerate of me."

"Oh, I don't mean that!" the flush deepening. "I am glad you know."

"I have known some time."

"How could you? I only knew today myself."

"I have eyes."

She flushed again.

"Do you mean that people"—she began anxiously.

"No; I am not 'people.' I have eyes, and my eyes have been opened."

"Opened?"

"Yes, by love."

Then I told her openly how weeks ago I struggled with my heart and mastered it, for I saw it was vain to love her because she loved a better man, who loved her in return. She looked at me shyly and said:

"I am sorry."

"Don't worry," I said cheerfully. "I didn't break my heart, you know. I stopped it in time."

"Then?" she said, slightly disappointed.

Then her lips began to twitch, and she went off into a fit of hysterical laughter.

"Forgive me," she said humbly, "but you speak as if it had been a fever."

"Fever is nothing to it," I said solemnly. "It was near thing."

At which she went off again. I was glad to see her laugh. It gave me time to recover my equilibrium, and it relieved her intense emotional strain. So I rattled on some nonsense about Craig and myself till I saw she was giving me heed, but thinking her own thoughts, and what these were it was not hard to guess.

Suddenly she broke in upon my talk:

"He will tell me that I must go from him."

"I hope he is no such fool," I said emphatically and somewhat rudely. I fear, for I confess I was impatient to you that I go, but to me!"

She did not dare to finish.

At this time Craig was standing before her, his face deathly pale. When she came to the end of her words, he said in a voice low, sweet and thrilling with emotion:

"Ah, if you only knew! Do not make me forget myself. You do not guess what you are doing."

"What am I doing? What is there to know but that you tell me easily to go?"

She was struggling with the tears she was too proud to let him see.

He put his hands resolutely behind him, looking at her as if studying her face for the first time. Under his searching look she dropped her eyes, and the warm color came slowly up to her neck and face. Then, as if with a sudden resolve, she lifted her eyes to his and looked back at him unflinchingly.

He started, surprised, drew slowly near, put his hands upon her shoulders, surprised giving place to wild joy. She never moved her eyes. They drew him toward her. He took her face between his hands, smiled into her eyes, kissed her lips. She did not move. He stood back from her, threw up his head and laughed aloud. She came to him, put her head upon his breast and, lifting up her face, said, "Kiss me." He put his arms about her, bent down and kissed her lips again and then reverently her brow. Then, putting her head back from him, but still holding both her hands, he cried:

"You will help him all you can, for it will hurt him to have me go."

The quiver in her voice took out all the anger from my heart, and before I knew it had pledged myself to do all I could to help him.

But when I came upon him that night, sitting in the light of his fire, I saw he must be left alone. Some battles we fight side by side, with comrades cheering me and being cheered to victory, but there are fights we may not share, and these are deadly fights, where lives are lost and won. So I could only lay my hand upon his shoulder without a word. He looked up quickly, read my face and said, with a groan:

"You know?"

"I could not help it. But why groan?"

"She will think it right to go," he said desperately.

"Then you must think for her. You must bring some common sense to bear upon the question."

"I cannot see clearly yet," he said.

"The light will come."

"May I show you how I see it?" I asked.

"Go on," he said.

For an hour I talked, eloquently, even vehemently, urging the reason and right of my opinion. She would be doing no more than every woman does, no more than she did before. Her mother-in-law had a comfortable home, all that wealth could procure, good servants and friends. The estates could be managed without her personal supervision. After a few years' work here they would go east for little Marjorie's education. Why should two lives be broken? And so I went on.

He listened carefully, even eagerly.

"You make a good case," he said, with a slight smile. "I will take time. Perhaps you are right. The light will come. Surely it will come. But," and here he sprang up and stretched his arms to full length above his head, "I am not sorry. Whatever comes I am not sorry. It is great to have her love, but greater to love her as I do. Thank God, nothing can take that away. I am willing, glad, to suffer for the joy of loving her."

Next morning before I was awake he was gone, leaving a note for me:

My dear Connor—I am due at the Landing. With you, you again, I think my stay will be short. Now all is dark. At times I am a coward and often, as you know, I may never become a man.

I am willing to be led, or want to be at any rate. I must do the best, not second best, for her, for me. The best only is God's will. What else would you have? You go to her these days, dear old fellow, Yours,

Craig.

How often those words have braced me! I will never know, but I am a better man for them: "The best only is God's will. What else would you have?" I resolved I would rage no more and that I would worry Mrs. Mayor with no more argument or expostulation, but, as my friend had said, "be good to her."

"I will say it, I must say it!" she cried, her voice vibrating with the intensity of her feeling. "I know you do not need me. You have your work, your miners, your plans. You need no one. You are strong. But," and her voice rose to a cry, "I am not strong by myself. You have made me strong. I come here a foolish girl, foolish and sedish and narrow. You sent me grief. Three years ago my heart failed. Now I am living again. I am a woman now, no longer a girl. You have done this for me. Your life, your words, yourself—you have shown me a better, a higher, life than I had ever known before, and now you send me away."

She paused abruptly.

"Blind, stupid fool!" I said to myself.

He held himself resolutely in hand, answering carefully, but his voice had lost its coldness and was sweet and kind.

"I have done this for you?" I said.

"You have helped me more than any words could tell you."

"Helped?" she repeated scornfully.

"Yes, helped," he answered, wondering at her scorn.

"You can do without my help," she went on. "You make people help you. You will get many to help you. But I need help too."

"I am not thinking of you," I said.

"Fever is nothing to it," I said solemnly. "It was near thing."

At which she went off again. I was glad to see her laugh. It gave me time to recover my equilibrium, and it relieved her intense emotional strain. So I rattled on some nonsense about Craig and myself till I saw she was giving me heed, but thinking her own thoughts, and what these were it was not hard to guess.

Suddenly she broke in upon my talk:

"He will tell me that I must go from him."

REPAIR THAT LOOM.

Berea College has secured a market for homespun and home-woven goods, such as bed coverlets, linen, dress linsey, jeans, blankets, etc., at following prices:

Coverlets, $4 to $6; Linen, 40 to 50 cents a yard; Dress Linsey, 50 cents a yard; Jeans, 60 cents a yard; Blankets, natural brown wool or bark dyes, $8 a pair.

White linsey and white blankets are not in demand only on orders. Coverlets must be 2 yards (72 inches) wide, and 2½ yards (90 inches) long. All dyes used must be old fashioned home-made dyes.

Any woman who wants to sell coverlets or homespun to Berea College should find out what the College wants before beginning to weave or spin. For information apply in person or by letter to

Mrs. Hattie Graham,

How to Cook Rice.

Wash the rice thoroughly in cold water. The amount of water used in cooking rice should be sufficient to cover it and rise about an inch above it in the cooking vessel. Use cold water always and let it come to the boiling point gradually over a fire of medium intensity. When it begins to boil thoroughly, remove the vessel to the back part of the stove or where it may be kept steaming for about fifteen minutes, when it will be sufficiently cooked. This will be manifested by its being slightly scorched on the bottom. The vessel used must be provided with a cover which fits perfectly tight. A thick iron pot is the best. Put no salt into the rice or water while cooking. The allowance of time for cooking the rice should be forty-five minutes twenty minutes for it to come to the boiling point and twenty-five minutes for steaming.

How to Cook Tripe.

Tripe prepared in this fashion is served at a well known New York club as one of the most popular dishes. The tripe, about half a pound for a dozen oysters, is well washed, simmered for three-quarters of an hour in slightly salted water and then removed. To the broth add a tablespoonful of butter rolled in flour, salt and pepper, with more flour added to thicken if necessary. Return the tripe, add the dozen of oysters, sliver and serve. This may also be prepared in a chafing dish.

CORRESPONDENCE.TO OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Several times lately THE CITIZEN has received items for the Correspondence columns without the writer's full name signed to them. We can, under no circumstances, publish anything unless the writer signs his or her full name with address, not necessarily for publication, but to show good faith and for our protection. Then sometimes we are under the necessity of cutting out some items from our correspondents, not because they are not good, but simply because our space is used up; so please do not feel offended or hurt if it sometimes happens that your items are cut.

One thing more. We are sorry it is so, but we cannot undertake to publish poetry. We have not the space to spare; we wish we had. The editor has at the present time a dozen poetic contributions from valued subscribers and friends, but cannot use them for the reason given above. We are anxious to please and satisfy our friends, but sometimes we are prevented by circumstances, so please believe we are doing our best for you.—THE CITIZEN.

JOHN AND TOM'S TRADE.—Police Judge Gay held his regular court Saturday. The docket was small, mostly civil cases.

THE SAME OLD STORY.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and retold by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by S. E. Welch, Jr.

Hair Splits

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for thirty years. It is elegant for a hair dressing and for keeping the hair from splitting at the ends."—J. A. Grnenfelder, Granford, Ill.

Hair-splitting splits friendships. If the hair-splitting is done on your own head, it loses friends for you, for every hair of your head is a friend.
